The

Year Brings Changes

Between the beginning and end of each school year, every student changed in one way or another. experiences encountered by each individual changes their personality and outlook on life. "Being a junior was cool because I had to be a responsible person because of the higher expectations placed upon me," said Maria Berry, "Being captain of the basketball team helped me learn responsibility and leadership. It was really neat to be a leader for the ninth graders on the freshman retreat. Having people look up to me as an example is a wonderful experience." The school year also proved to be a life changing experience for junior Russian exchange student Polina Davydova, and in her opinion, she became a better person. This year has been an amazing and unique experience for me. Becoming a part of a small Catholic high school is something that very few people go through in life," said Polina, "It helped me destroy some serious stereotypes, increase my outlook and become much more open-minded and well-rounded." After being named the only No Child Left Behind Blue Ribbon private high school in the entire nation, the school year began with a bang. Students and faculty alike were honored by the school's high achievement. The senior class even made t-shirts that highlighted the Blue Ribbon status of the school.

Some students, such as junior Hannah Schafer, experienced an increased difficulty in their classes. "Since my junior year has been so hard academically, I have risen to the challenge to get my act together to improve my grades," commented Hannah. She was not the only one to encounter this change, however. "My classes have gotten a little harder. In math we are working on some equations with only letters," said Shelby Gray. "I don't understand it but I am trying to learn." Others focused on parts of school besides academics when summarizing the year as a whole. "This year was good for the most part, but I did not enjoy the dances," said Jacob Sanders. He continued, "Sporting events were my favorite part of the school year." -Jonathan Fisher.

May I have the envelope please ...

In September, students and faculty were elated to learn that Shawe Memorial Junior/Senior High School was selected as a 2006 No Child Left Behind Blue Ribbon School. There was some speculation amongst the students of adopting blue as a third school color.

After hard of. and years persistent work, many students were glad to finally be recognized in 2006. "Being named a Blue Ribbon school is an incredible accomplishment for our school and our community. I am very thankful for all the hardworking teachers, staff, and students that made this happen," said senior Ben Campbell. Being nationally recognized was not the only reason students enjoyed spending their day-to-day at Shawe. Many students loved the comfortable atmosphere and the freedom to express themselves without fear of rejection. "My style is gangsta...no, really my style is punk. I like stripes and polka-dots! I also wear a lot of band shirts." said sophomore Rachel Versweyveld. Other students appreciated the strong school spirit. "The school spirit here isn't like anywhere that I've ever gone to school before. Everybody gets really involved and way into the games. Everybody is very competitive," said freshman Alexis Hurst. -Luke Wise

Christmas Dance

Throughout the first semester, one could hear the faint sound of excitement in the halls about the annual Christmas Dance. Most of the thrill came from the downstairs hallway, from the freshman class.

Dakota Jones said, "I liked going out to eat with my friends

One of the most exciting days of the year for some High School students -Prom night - was held at the Livery Stable. After long discussions held by the Prom Committee, the theme ended up being "Happily Ever After". The couples were brought to the dance in carriages and Cinderella movies were being played throughout the night, which kept the non-dancers entertained. "The Prom Committee did a great job. It was the most beautiful prom I have ever seen," said Kristin Waller. Many students enjoyed eating the

Games Day

An afternoon of fun and competition gave all of the students a chance to relax at the end of a long, hard school year. Many students enjoyed being able to spend time outdoors rather than cooped up in a classroom. "I liked the fact that everybody got to spend time together as a school, and it's good accomplishment for me," said because it gives us a chance to be competitive and have fun at the same time. I hope we can keep it going," commented Jacob

There were many different responsibilities for the classes this year. The seventh grade had many changes to adapt to. "At Pope John, we didn't have lockers and didn't have to switch classrooms. It was hard to get used to switching classes and having different teachers for each subject. Having lockers was a big responsibility because if I forgot something, I couldn't go back and get it. Shawe was hard at first, but now I like it!" Alexis Guillen said when responding to differences at Shawe. On the other end, the Seniors said "goodbyel" to what they have known for the past six years. Tom Seaver said, "being with all of my friends, just hanging out, and getting rowdy for sporting events," is what he will miss the most. The juniors, preparing for their senior year, worked the concession stands for money. "This money will go toward our senior expenses, and for most of us, that will benefit us and our parents," Alice Belt, Class President, said on working. -Alyssa Hall

The junior class was given the challenge of raising money for prom and graduation. This is the first year that the junior class had to raise money for graduation and have always had to raise money for prom.

The major fundraiser was the junior dinner and silent auction which brings in the larger portion of the budget. Freshman year was a pivotal time in a student's high school career.

"Freshman year is really hard because it is such a big change in classes. All the classes are harder and the grade will be on my permanent record. It's tough," said Jared Watterson.

Freshman year was also a gateway. "I noticed even the first day of school that the high schoolers paid more attention to me. They wanted to be friends with me and it was really cool. When I was in junior high the upperclassmen didn't seem to notice me and now this year, it's different," said Rachel Muessel. Some of the eighth graders enjoyed having the luxury of taking some high school classes offered. "I can take high school classes that give me credits towards my diploma. That way I don't have to take them during high school," said Olivia Daugherty.

The class also made attempts to raise money for their class trip to Washington D.C. "To raise money for the trip we sold trash bags, worked at lock-ins, and worked at the community festival," said Paul Wehner.

"What I like about being an eighth grader at Shawe is we are no longer at the bottom of the totem pole," said Patrick Green commenting on finally advancing a level as no longer the youngest. The class, last year, got cut in front of in every line and all the things that happen when one doesn't have an seniority. But, now, they rejoiced after moving up a grade.

With many changes from elementary school to junior high school the Seventh graders were still be found with smiling faces. New teachers, changing classes every forty-five minutes and having more freedom.

"The biggest change coming to Shawe for me is that I have to stay way more organized. I have to keep a different binder for every class so I don't lose anything. I also use an agenda book a lot more so I don't forget assignments" said Chloe Storm.

"I had To get used to all my new teachers. They all had different expectations and I had to make sure that I followed all their separate rules. I also have a hearing problem so I didn't know how teachers would react to my hearing aid but everything turned out well" said Franklin Belt. -Alyssa Richard

The faculty and staff played a huge behind the scenes role in the reception of the 2006 No Child Left Behind Blue Ribbon School award. The faculty and staff dedicated themselves to the students. Many teachers could be found before school, after school and over the weekends in their classroom preparing lesson plans or helping students.

New members of this year's cast were Mr. Aaron Floyd - Health and Physical Education, Mr. Matthew Graham - Performing Arts, Band and Choir, and Fr. Shaun Whittington - Chaplain and Religion.

"The hardest part of teaching choir is getting the students to do their stretches before they sing. They don't understand the importance of stretching and relaxing your muscles before singing," said choir teacher Matt Graham. "This is my first year teaching and it has been great," said rookie physical education teacher Aaron Floyd. -Luke Wise

Academics

Students balance time between school and play

Advanced Placement classes offer high school students a chance to gain college credit. Rigorous exams, held in May, allow students to prove what they learn throughout the year. Scores above a three earn credit at most universities.

Most students had seven or eight classes in their schedule. but a few chose to take on additional course work. The balancing act of eight or nine proved to be the difficult part. Freshman Dakota Jones commented, "It's hard to keep up with everything because I also play sports and practice is everyday but I try to keep all my classes balanced and my grades good." Students were challenged along the way with homework, research papers and exams. "The hard part of academics is keeping all of my work organized. I'm definitely guilty of putting certain things in the wrong folders or binders and its also harder than I expected to get everything I need for some of my classes," stated seventh grader Zoe Mires. In the end, all the hard work paid off. Senior Nick Torline said, "The most rewarding part of succeeding in academics is the self satisfaction I get in doing well. Its nice not having your parents hassling you about it all the time, too." -Kathryn Gray

Writing Demands

Students write sonnets, journals, essays and short stories.

For the first time, seventh grade students took on the overwhelming task of vocabulary books. While the rest of the school was accustomed to this weekly task it became an adventure for the newest additions to the school. Other important aspects of the English courses included reading classic novels, studying poetry, short stories, writing essays and grammar exercises. Seventh grader Benjamin Craig said, "I like English class because we read a lot interesting books that are fun to read." "The Kite Runner was my favorite book," said Kathryn Gray. -Mitch Lauster

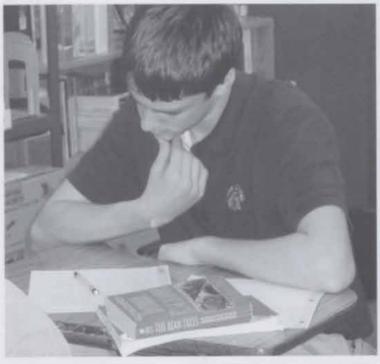

Freshman students, Nicole Zapp, Harlan Kelly, Katherine Bear and Rachel Muessel work together on a study guide for The Bean Trees. The Bean Trees was a novel that the freshman students read in class. The class worked together on study guides for all the novels that they read in the class. Nicole Zapp said, "Working together can be very helpful. It gives you a chance to share ideas that others may have but you don't." photo by Alyssa Hall.

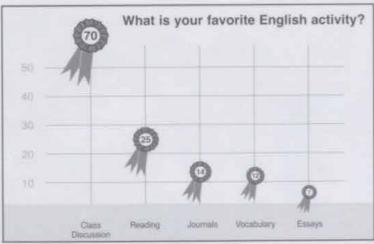

Seventh Grade students Alexis Guillen and Taylor Davis peer edit each others papers in the junior high creative writing class. What is your favorite story that you read this year in class? Why did you like it?

Todd Ungru

Tim not going to lie. I don't like to read. I really don't read too much. I read if l'absolutely have to but other than that I don't do it."

"How Much Does A Man Need, because it teaches you that if you got more land than you should really get, you'll loose all of it."

Polina Davydova

Grapes of Wrath. I liked the book because it tells us about U.S. history, but also about different people and their thoughts, hopes and wishes."

Campbell Higbie

'My favorite book that I have read this year is Call of the Wild because it was more mature than we had read. It was also very well written.

English Challenges

In your opinion, what is the most challenging part of science and why?

Joe Sommer

"I hate keeping portfolios because it is hard and I am not very organized."

Franklin Belt

"I would have to say kinetic and potential energy because I always get them mixed up."

Katie Amick

"The most challenging, part of science for me is memorizing everything, because there are a lot of things to learn."

Kenny Leveille

"The most challenging part of science for me is understanding that my concept of "playing doctor and the book's concept of "doctor" are totally unrelated."

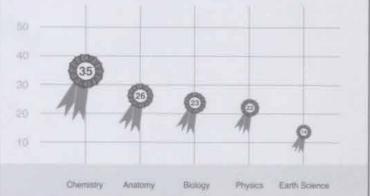

Nick Hall and Jacob Bump enjoy the humor of Mrs. Christine Stormer's anatomy class. After dissecting an adult cat to learn about the muscle systems in mammals,

Scientists Discover

Students learn the mysteries of biology, anatomy and chemistry

For many, science classes challenged. Some students found it exciting and enjoyed the time they spent studying or doing lab experiments. Taking science classes sometimes helped make life-changing decisions. After taking a biology II class Hannah Schafer stated "Taking biology class helped me realize what I want to do with my life, which is study agribusiness and hopefully become successful in the beef business. I think the science classes I've taken will help prepare me for my future career." -Polina Davydova

Katie Amick and Jordy Fry operate on one of the most exciting lab experiments of the year, the cat dissection. "I am glad I decided to take anatomy this year Mrs. Stormer made the class so interesting and fun, and the people in the class made each day a new experience. I never saw myself dissecting a cat, but with Katie Amick as my partner, we had a blast discovering the organs of a cat, "said Jordy Fry. photo by Katie Amigione"

Math Fills the Quota

Math pays dividends when students join the work force

As a requirement to graduate, students had to acquire at least three credits in math. Mrs. Jane Riehle and Mrs. Teresa Torline bore the load of teaching all math subjects ranging from Pre-Algebra to AP Calculus. Principal Jerry Bomholt, a former math instructor, was available to assist students if necessary. The tools that students gained in their math classes applied to other aspects of their lives. Rachelle Tandy commented, "Math is very helpful in my job at Bob Evans, because I have to add up my tips every night." -Maria Berry

During Calculus class, Mrs. Jane Reille prepares her students for their big AP exam by playing a review game with them. Senior Todd Ungru found the derivative of an equation to earn his group a point. Teachers reviewed with their students in many different ways, including all kinds of different games or races. Todd said, "I like reviewing for my tests because it isn't as bad as the regular class." photo by Carole Williams

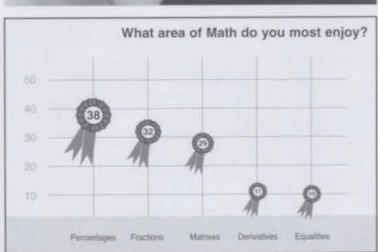

During Algebra class, Mrs. Teresa Torline assists freshman Alexis Zarate with his homework assignment. Alexis said, "Treatly appreciate the individual attention that Mrs. Torline gives me, because I understand my homework a lot better when she explains the lessons just to me. She is a great feacher." Another alternative when a student needed more individual help was to go to the principal, Mr. Jerome Bomholt, a former math feacher, or to a Memorial Memor for extra help, photo by Mana Berry.

During meth class, Jared Watterson explains an Algebra problem to his class by demonstrating how to solve if on the board. Jared said, "I enjoy explaining things to my classmates, because it makes me feel really smart. I also like it when another one of my classmates shows me how to do things, because it helps me understand better." Oftentimes students helped each other when it was needed, photo by Kathiyri Gray.

Do you consider math an easy or more difficult class for you?

Kristin Waller

"Math is by far my most difficult class. I don't like math, and I can't concentrate during class."

Sarah Abdel-Wahab

"Math is very hard for me. It's just always been hard for me to understand."

Jordan Robison

"Math is one of my easier classes because this is my second time taking it, and it's easier the second time around."

Math Adds Up

What is your favorite activity that you do in your Social Studies class and why?

Keaton Dillman and Nico Mingione work together on an in-class assignment.
"Doing worksheets helps me because seeing the material over and over again helps me remember the information Miss Nigg gives me in class because I see it again and again," said Keaton Dillman. Students witnessed one another working with their peers throughout the year. Time spent with their friends while they work proved to be fun for the students. photo by Harlan Kelly.

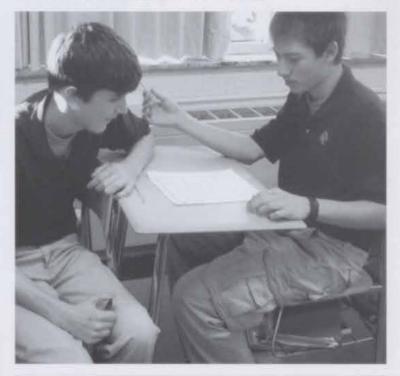

Caitlin Kelly

"My favorite activity is doing projects. I like the responsibility of a big project. It gives us a chance to get out of the book and on to something fun. I like to look at the final project and be proud of it."

Bryan Bronchik

"My favorite activity in Social Studies class is when we do projects because I'm good at art, and we don't have quizzes over them."

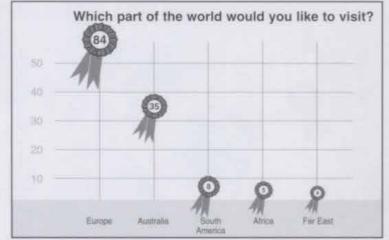

Drew Martin

"I like doing presidential posters because they're easy and bring up my grade."

Alex Lauderbaugh

"My favorite thing about government is when we go to Model UN because it's cool to meet new people, and to learn how countries deal with problems."

Students Study World

No Laws Apply

From policies to presidents, students look at world issues.

Students watched movies, did projects and in-class assignments, turned in homework, and of course took field trips. Mr. DuVall took his AP History, AP Government, and a few volunteers from his regular government class to Indiana University Southeast again this year to participate in Model UN. "Model UN helped to give me a new perspective on how each part of government actually works, which in turn has helped me in class," said Ricky McGee after he returned from his two day field trip. -Alyssa Hall

Seniors, as required, take either AP Government or regular Government with Mr. Chad DuVall during their last year in high school. Jason Goley said, "I do not like doing workbook pages, but it is like most homework, it is not fun, but it helps me to understand the class. I think it helps because it lets me study the book from a different point of view." This year students received workbooks in their Government class to give them yet another homework grade. photo by Kathryn Gray.

During Social Studies, students pair up to help each other with their homework. "Working with a partner helps me because it keeps me interested and on task so thing aren't so boring," said Sam Boone. Students throughout the school have always pushed the trachers for more group work time. Working on projects and on homework with their peers has always proved to help students not only in the classroom, but also in their friendships outside of school, photo by Brandon Scroggins.

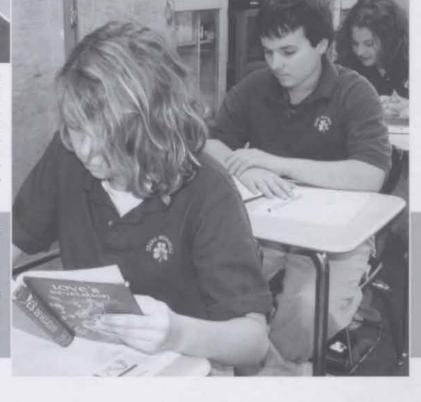

Religion Blooms

Father Shaun Whittington joins the religion department staff

On a cold December morning the religion classes trudged along the sidewalk to First Friday Adoration. Even though the climate was unfavorable, all religion classes were required to attend. Once a month students were able to participate in Reconciliation. Every Wednesday Mass was celebrated at St. Patricks. "I like how I get to participate in all the school religious activities because I feel like it brings me closer to God. I am thankful because at another school I would not be able to do that," said Drew Martin. -Alyssa Richard

As a religion requirement, students are responsible for service hours that benefit the school, community or church. Jordy Fry said, "I feel like service hours help me give back to the community. I help people and it makes me feet good about myself. I know I probably wouldn't do nearly as many service activities if I didn't have to I am grateful I have to do them because even though they can be a pain at times, in the end its really worth it." photo by Bricket Fry

Zoe Mires, Tyler Canada and Kaelle Davis work in Miss. Elizabeth Applegate's seventh grade religion class. First semester seventh graders had to study the Old Testament. "In religion we learned a lot about Moses and how God gave him the Ten commandments. Moses story was very interesting to me," says Zoe Mires, photo by Carole Williams.

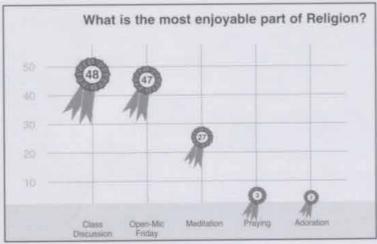

Many students enjoy in-class activities. "Class activities really made things more interesting. It's much more fun to have hands-on activities instead of just reading out of the book. For me it's easier to learn something that is fun because it seems to help me remember that material better," said Nicole Zapp. When looking into the classrooms, students could be seen engaged in many activities. photo by Harlan Kelly

What is the hardest part of religion for you?

Matheus Galvao De Galvao

"It is difficult for me to understand what the father says because sometimes he uses terms that I don't have any idea of what they mean."

"Pop quizzes are the hardest part of religion for me. I feel like I know the material until Father says pull out a half sheet of paper. That's when I start to second guess myself."

Paul Wehner

"The hardest part of religion for me would have to be the fact that I'm not Catholic and I have to learn things that are contrary to my own beliefs."

William Mruzek

"The hardest thing about religion would have to be all of the pop quizzes. Father just goes crazy with them."

Faith Strengthens

What do you enjoy most about physical education or health and why?

After playing a game of Capture the Flag, Franklin Belt and Nick Craig put away a mat that the class used in a game. Setting up and putting away materials played an important role in physical education class. "It's not really that bad because someone has to clean up the equipment," said Franklin. "Cleaning the gym is important so that the next class can have more time to participate in class." photo by Jonathan Fisher.

Michael

"Mr. Floyd is a pretty cool teacher, but I'm not a morning person. Physical education kind of wakes me up. It helps me start my day the right way."

Susan Goley

"The best part of physical education is that we get to play a bunch of different games, I've never even heard of some. It's nice to learn about new games and to be able to play them."

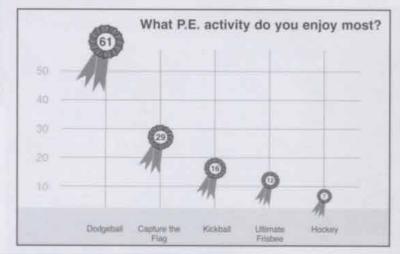

Lloyd Strohl

"I take both PE and health this semester. During PE. I get to loosen-up and exercise during the school day. Health is interesting because I learn about different lifestyles."

Joe Bear

"We play a variety of games and the teacher is cool. There is also a lot of conflict."

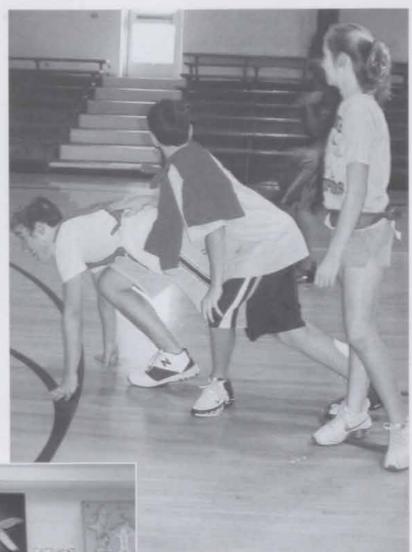

Students Get Healthy

Fitness Matters

Students learn the importance of physical activity and good health

Joining the staff, Mr. Aaron Floyd became the new P.E. teacher. Tom Scroggins moved up and took over the athletic director position, as well as teaching health. "I like health because Mr. Scroggins makes things fun," said sophomore Evan Torline. Many students saw physical education as a chance to take a break from their other classes and rid themselves of a little extra energy. Students learned about living a wholesome life in health. Although often overlooked academically, physical education and health remain two important courses for young people. -Jonathan Fisher

Jacob Sanders and Michael Kring take a rest on a base in Capture the Flag while Kimmie Schafer stands riearby! Most students enjoyed the time they spent in physical education playing games and exercising. "I like physical education because I have it the last period of the day," said Kimmie. "I can run around and have fun and not worry about any more classes. I also don't have to worry about changing back into my clothes." photo by Carole Williams

Olivia Daugherty, Daniel Fisher, Brogan Drumm, Sam Campbell, and Shelby Gray listen attentively to Mr.

Scroggins as he teaches a lesson with the projector. The projector added much to the class experience by giving students valuable information in a more interesting manner. Olivia said, "I like it when Mr. Scroggins uses the projector in class. Seeing the things we learn visually helps me comprehend the material more efficiently."

Computers Arrive

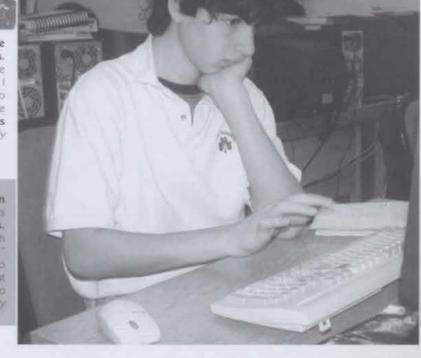

Anonymous donors provide laptops for full-time teachers

"I really love all of my classes, said Mrs. Lou Ann Center, the business and economics teacher." I enjoy them because I am able to teach different levels of classes together." Mrs. Center's classes sometimes included students taking different courses. Mrs. Center also commented on other classes. "Accounting, computers and economics are all basic skills that everyone needs," she said. "School-to-work allows students the chance to experience real-life in their chosen area of study!" -Brandon Scroggins

In the Computer Applications class, Joey Leveille completes his assignment. Careers was taught by Mrs.

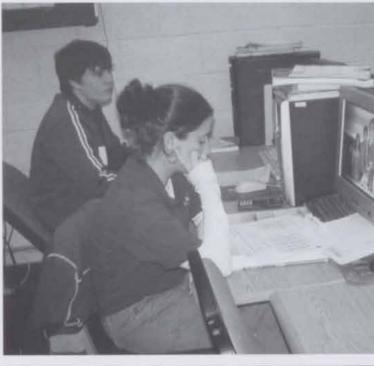

LouAnn Center. "This class applies to my future, because I am able to learn what I'm going to have to know once I am out of high school. It also gives me the opportunity to explore a doctor's office, which will help me decide whether or not I want to be a clocker," Megan Roberts commented, photo by Harlan Kelly

Working on his assignment for computers in Mrs. Lou Ann Center's class, Duncan Swartz works to find the answers to his application worksheet. "I take two classes with Mrs. Center this year. One is Computer Applications, which teaches how to use common windows programs," Duncan Swartz commonted. "My other class is Web Design, which gives me elective credits, and that's about it. I'm not going to take Web Design as my career." photo by Harlan Kelly.

Students often challenge themselves with worksheets from Mrs. Lou Ann Center. Corey Weaver and Halley Jones completed their worksheet within the class period. "Mrs. Center's worksheets aren't easy, but I get them done," said seventh grader Tyler Canada, "I've learned to type pretty well from working on the worksheets." photo by Harlan Kelly

What aspect of your foreign language class do you enjoy the most?

Israel Zarate

"What I like about French class is to learn another language. Mrs. Schafer is fun and makes the class very comfortable, but what I like to do most in French is to talk with my friends and learn about the culture."

Nico Mingione

"I will be going to France in four years. I am very excited. We will go to a lot of beautiful and interesting places."

Partner work in Spanish provides students with a chance to translate sentences using their own knowledge and the knowledge of those around them. Abbey and

Abbey "The hardest part of Spanish is writing the memory verse so many times, but I'd say that learning Spanish is really easy." photo by Brandon Scroggins

Nick Hall

"I enjoyed our class' soap opera and the fiestas. I also enjoyed the emotion Mrs. Evans shows everyday. It keeps us on our toes."

Katherine Bear

"I love the big Spanish party all day that we have every year, and when Mrs. Evans sings and reads the really funny stories in her really funny voices."

Classes Bridge Gaps

Cultures

Foreign language students strive to understand other cultures

Foreign language classes gave students a chance to experience different cultures. Some students opted to take Spanish as a second language, while others believed French offered an interesting experience. Ricky McGee said he enjoyed, "...preparing for and going on the trip to France." Many students enjoyed the challenge of learning a different language. "It may be difficult, but learning French will allow me to communicate with the natives when I attend the French trip," said Rachelle Tandy. -Kelsi Ward

Todd Ungru served cookies to Jackson Wendel, a kindergarten student at Pope John. Todd appreciated the chance to spend time with the younger kids. Erench meals create a unique experience for first year students to become accustomed to the French language and culture. Yuliana Zarate sal patiently articipating her ice cream float served to her by fellow classmates Taylor. Davis and Tori Valkovci. Tori and Taylor enjoyed the chance to perform their skit in front of their French I class. Skits offered an exciting way for students to learn about their language. "It's easier to learn the French language by acting it out." Taylor agreed, photo by Harlan Kelly.

Art Takes Flight

Art students enhance knowledge of world cultures through art

Shawe artists learned to express themselves in new ways through various forms of painting, sculpting, drawing and digital technology.

Mrs. Fishmer, interning at Shawe during the first semester, expanded the students artistic horizons and introduced them to new aspects of art that many of the students never had experienced. Jared Martin confesses that, "You have to be good at art to have a life long career in art." Students could be found in between classes, during study halls, and after school dedicating themselves to their artwork.

- Luke Wise

The styles and originality of Dr. Seuss were among Senior Cody Harm's favorite art inspiration. Fellow senior, Alyssa Half's favorite project that she completed for Mrs. Fishmer was the project on the computer that imitated Andy Warhol. "Taking a good picture was really difficult because the object had to be very simple, but complex at the same time." Artists unfamiliar with photography had a difficult time taking pictures that were considered "A" work by Mrs. Fishmer. photo by Luke Wise

Independent study art student, Hannah Schafer, works diligently to complete her art project for Mrs. Fischmer The students were asked to paint the Mona Lisa in the style of a well-known artist. Art makes Chase Jones leel expressive. "I can just pour myself into my work. Every feeling I have ever felt can go into my art pieces. With an everything is possible." Students allowed their creativity to come through in a venety of different styles and projects, photo by Luke Wise.

What culture most influences your artwork and why?

Kristin Waller

"I really don' know I just go with what is in my head. It also depends on what I am working on, so I guess the culture that influences my artwork changes a lot."

"Actually, there are many different cultures that influence me, so I guess a little bit from all over the world and different time periods from 1990's to now."

There is not really a

"There is not really a culture that influences my artwork. My biggest influence is definitely Mrs. Williams. I just do what she tells me to do and trust in her expertise and my art usually comes out fairly decent."

Hannah Schafer

"Renaissance culture most influence my artwork. My favorite type of art and culture, though, is folk art."

Vision Thrives

What is your favorite activity in performing arts and why do you enjoy it the most?

Four girls, Hana Roberts, Shelby Gray, Becca Sims and Brittany Armstrong sing and laugh in choir class. This class was intermixed with boys and girls and had a variety of voice ranges. "For the most part, singing soprano is pretty easy. The alto's usually have the harder parts. The only hard thing is going really really high," said Shelby Gray when asked about her part. photo by Alyssa Richard.

Jonathan Fisher

"My favorite part of band is when Mr. Graham sings the parts we don't have while the rest of the band is playing their parts."

Jared Watterson

"My favorite part of drama is everyone has to do something for the play to be good."

Missy Fuller

"My favorite part of performing arts is the singing. That is because I like to sing."

Brittany Armstrong

Arts Enlighten

Performers Entertain

Students participate in acting and musical performing with a passion

Performing arts classes continued their popularity. With the addition of, Mr. Matt Graham, many new activities occurred. "This year we are doing more complicated plays which makes it more fun and challenging," Jordan Bear said. The change of regular routine in class was fun. "I really enjoy watching my brother excel in drama class. I think he should pursue a career in acting," Luke Wise said. "It's really neat to see the students doing something creative" said Kathryn Gray -Harlan Kelly.

In Drama class Darren Lainhart and Rachel Versweyveld practice a skit they prepare for exams. Many students participated in hands on activities, which were a big part of the everyday activities of drama class. Drama students performed Peter Pan in the spring. "I took drama class because it was a good chance to have a new teacher. It is also fun to be in class where everyone gets a chance to be the center of attention, "Darren Lainhart said, photo by Harlan Kelly

One of the few low brass players, William Mruzek, practices his part in band. The band performed with a minimal amount of people but played as if there were many. I hardly ever get a chance to play my saxophone in front of people so the concert was really fun for me. The slinging was not as fun because I'm not as good in that area," Michael Muessel sald, photo by Harlan Kelly.

Scholars Prevail

Students excel in various areas and receive a variety of awards

Ben Campbell and Kenny Leveille were chosen as Commended Scholars. "To receive this award I took a test and I did very well on it," said Ben Campbell. What Scholarship or Award meant the most to you?

Andrew Bear

"The Award that meant the most to me was the Retired Teachers' Scholarship. It was a surprise and I didn't expect to get it"

"The Award that meant most to me would have to be the Presidential Service Award. Its nice to finally get recognized for all my hard work"

Jason Goley

The award that meant the most to me was the Paul Pohrig Kiwanis Club Mental Attitude Award."

Kathryn Gray

"I was honored by all the awards I received but the most meaningful was the Youth Golden Shamrock Award because it was chosen by my classmates."

Field Trips

Learning outside brings new experience

This year students not only studied in class, but also learned by traveling near and far. The French Club made a journey to Europe, U.S. History and Government classes attended the annual Model UN project, the Pro-Life March students and the Eighth grade ventured to Washington D.C along with many other field trips.

Learning campus gave students the opportunity to broaden their horizons with outside experiences. Field trips and overnight excursions allowed participants to get away while journalism students got a chance to have a field trip. "We went to IU Southeast, where the yearbook staff received many first place awards, which proved how hard they worked on the Connoisseur," said Polina Davydova. A large group of students attended the annual Pro-Life March in Washinton D.C. "I liked the Holocaust Museum. It gave me a sense of just how precise human life is and I came to alleviate this carnage. In a sense abortion is a modern holocaust and we should not allow history to repeat itself," shared Adam Culbreth. During Spring Break twenty French students journeyed to Europe. "My favorite part of the trip was our time in Nice, France. It was beautiful there and the weather was good." said Kristin Waller. - Polina Davydova

"I have been to Washington, D.C before, but revisiting was still a lot of fun. The most memorable part of the trip were the rides on the metro and the hotel, because we had time to socialize and play "Cops" on the top floor," said lan McGarry. The art field trip also turned out great. "I really enjoyed looking at the art work. My favorite was "John Wayne" by Andy Warhol, "said Hannah Schafer. -Polina Davydova

On March 21, the juniors and seniors in French, along with fifteen chaperones, made their way across the Atlantic to explore majestic European cities and put to use the language they studied for the four years. Their trip began in Rome, where they visited the Coliseum and Vatican City, from there on to Florence and Pisa in Italy. After crossing the boarder into France, Nice, Eze, Monaco, Avingnon, Les Beaux, Aix au Provence, and Toulon were visited. "Nice was my favorite, it was neat to be on the Mediterrean and being just down the road from Eze and Monaco," Maria Berry commented. From Toulon, a overnight train ride took the tired tourists to Paris. While in the City of Lights, the group visited Notre Dame, The Louvre, Effiel Tower, The Champs Elysees, and Sacred Heart. Darren Lainhart explained, "I loved being in Europe, Notre Dame was a great place to visit, there was so much to see." Zane Tingle summed up his experience, "I saw new things, tasted different food, climbed to the top of very tall buildings, drank wine, and got stuck in an elevator all in eleven days." -Kathryn Gray

Continuing the Catholic tradition of helping each others and not expecting anything in return was foundation of the service hour program. Advisor Mrs. Bridget Fry explained why she thought it beneficial, "Service Hours institute a sense of stewardship in our students and it also allows those who aren't the best athletes or academics to be recognized for something they do well." Grades seventh through ninth were required to accumulate fourteen hours a semester, while sophomores, juniors and seniors had to reach the twenty hour mark. "I find the actual service very rewarding," commented Ben Campbell. The service was put into four categories; Family Friend, Community, School and Church. "Service Hours are rewarding because I feel like I've done something for the community and school," said Rachel Muessel. -Kathryn Gray

Bright and early one Thursday morning, the eighth graders loaded the bus to start their travels to Washington, D.C. They spent four short days walking around from monument to monument in the midst of millions of other tourists. Becca Sims said, "My favorite monument was the Korean War Memorial," out of all the magnificent monuments they had the chance to visit. The visiting not only ended with the monuments, but the class had a chance to spend tons of time with one another. "My friends and I all seemed to bond because we had more time to enjoy each other and just have fun," Ian McGarry said. After only a few short days, they left with many unforgettable memories. Kimmey Schafer said, "I will remember the time I spent with my dad. I didn't think it would be fun with him there, but it was!" -Alyssa Hall

> The J.V. and Varsity soccer teams took a trip to Waveland Mississippi this past summer to help clean up the hurricane Katrina destruction. The teams had two practices a day, one in the morning and one after work. They worked for eight hours a day. "My favorite part of Waveland was when we went into the ocean. It was refreshing and you could go a long way out into the water. I also liked Bump's singing," said John Stack. The students that went to Waveland enjoyed going because the felt like they deeply helped some of the people who had suffered. "I enjoyed our trip to Waveland because it was nice to help other people out. It was one of the most rewarding things I have ever done. Especially because the people down there were so grateful. One women even bought us pizza." said Alex Murphy. - Katie Mingione.

Student organizations carried on their activities and faced several changes. The Student Council was headed by a new president Luke Wise. "Being Student Council president has been very difficult. It has not been easy to distinguish myself from former president Jacob Laskowski. It has been very rewarding though and extremely successful," said Luke. A new club also joined the ranks. The Junior Statesmen of America immediately became popular and many students joined the JSA. The Junior Statesmen of America, sponsored by band teacher Mr. Matthew Graham, is a club dedicated to learning about government. Our main activity is debating about various world issues," said sophomore Jonathan Fisher. The Honor Societies continued their mission oof service through raking leaves, washing cars, and the first ever Dr. Seuss week. Most of the already existing organizations continued working hard and helping students spend their free time. Harland Kelly shared his thoughts about his favorite organization, "Amnesty International has helped me realize that there are a lot of wrong things happening in the world and it gives me a chance to help out." -Polina Davydova

Topper Tribune Staff works to get releases on track

Although only one issue was printed throughout the entire first semester, it was a very important year for the Topper Tribune that many on the staff saw as a revamping of the paper as a whole. The paper was promised the profit from Shawe graduate Jacob Laskowski's new book, Shawe. Looking Back: The Story Of The Hilltopper, as long as the staff worked together to put out more issues. "I think it was a large issue," commented sophomore Jessica Moore about the small number of issues released by the paper during the first semester. "It would be much better if a new edition was released more than once per every few months." agreed Topper Tribune editor Harlan Kelly, who was also frustrated by the lack of a regular issue. "The Topper Tribune is a great way to let students voice their thoughts, concerns, and viewpoints," Harlan said. "It can be difficult overseeing the project, however, when there is a shortage of staff writers turning their articles in time. It got better during the second semester when I more people took responsibility and completed their articles on time."

In addition to being a source off news for readers, the Tribune also allowed students on the staff to learn valuable skills for later in life. "Writing for the paper taught me responsibility because I had to turn in my articles on time," said junior writer Alice Belt. Despite the paper's struggles throughout the year, the Topper Tribune provided ample opportunities for students looking for challenges. Jonathan Fisher

Honor Society

Members learn the meaning of charity

The Sister Thomasita Hayes chapter of the National Honor Society began its year by inducting 20 new members, raising the total number of members. Despite the increase in numbers, the group's focus remained the same: to raise money for charity and to provide a positive example of character to the other students in the school

Many fundraisers and activities were held by the Society. Fundraisers ranged from a chili dinner at a home basketball game to a school-wide canned food drive. Committees also planned activities for the school, a movie relating to Black History Month, as well as "Dr. Seuss Week".

Members of the Honor Society were proud of their status. "I think that being in the NHS is an honor because of the fundraisers."

we do for charity," commented junior member Zach Canada. Jordy Fry also felt the importance of being part of such a proud club. "I've become a bigger part of the school through being a member of the NHS," said Jordy.

Some members found a different purpose for being in the Honor Society. "Being in the National Honor Society allows me to participate in activities that I would not normally take place in," said senior member Jason Goley.

NJHS gives back to community

Under new President, Brandon Scroggins, and new Vice-President, Harlan Kelly, the National Junior Honor Society reached out to the community around them. "One of our tasks was to go to various houses in the area and rake leaves during the fall," said Dakota Jones. "It was a great experience, and we received many thank you's and compliments."

"I love to watch the kids work on projects that give back or help out others. Sometimes that can be difficult at first, but when they actually do it, all makes perfect sense," said NJHS teacher advisor, Teresa Torline. "I know the kids feel better about themselves for doing it."

One of the first objectives of the NJHS was to go to various houses in the community and rake leaves.

"Raking leaves was a success. The people we raked leaves for really appreciated it," said NJHS member Michael Kring.

The next project was a fundraiser to raise enough money to buy turkeys for families around the area for the holidays. The NJHS had a goal of buying three or four turkeys. After the fundraiser, the NJHS had enough money to buy seven turkeys. After buying the turkeys, seven representatives of the NJHS took the turkeys down to the Salvation Army.

"The NJHS has been a positive affect on me. It is a good chance for me to be a leader and try and help the community and the school," said Harlan Kelly. "Plus, we get donuts in the mornings. Score!" -Brandon Scroggins

Amnesty International

Writing letters for a better tomorrow

They came together for a common good. Amnesty International was ressurected after a brief hiatus. With help from the national office the group wrote letters that were sent off all across the world. "Amnesty is a chance to do something good for people all over the world. I love knowing that I am making a difference in the lives of people that I don't even know." said Kelsi Ward. They sent letters for all different situations and for all different types of people. Amnesty allows students to be activists in their communities. "I know I can make some kind of difference, I don't know what it is yet, but I feel that I can start knowing by doing this. I do it to help those who are persecuted for trying to say what they know is right. I feel that I'm giving back to those who've suffered to have freedom like we have," said Kaitlin Distel. The belief in a better life for those being persecuted is the common idea for the people in Amnesty. "No matter what your ideas are, whether you have conservative or liberal ideas, you should be part of Amnesty. It is trying to prevent genocide and other types of killing of the innocent. It is just the support of your fellow humans, not some optimistic ideals." said Daniel Versweyveld. The empathy for the persecuted for not just people in foreign countries but also the U.S. was eminent with the amount of letters Amnesty sent off. "Yes, it was a little bit of a pain to write letters along with all your school work but the letters were very satisfying because I really felt like I was helping out," said Harlan Kelly. -Harlan Kelly

Clean Sweep At SISPA Conference

Shawe's journalism class consisted of twelve students. There were seven girls and five boys on the yearbook staff. Top ad salesperson, Katie Mingione sold $2,360 worth of ads to local businesses and individuals.

The first quarter of journalism class was primarily made up of selling ads. Some students enjoyed selling ads, while others did not like it at all. Mrs. Williams always set a goal for the students to reach by a certain date, and every time the staff succeeded in reaching their goals they were rewarded with a pizza party. Selling ads was the only method of fundraising used for the yearbook's publication. Alyssa Hall said, "The most difficult part of journalism class was having to get in contact with people while trying to sell them an ad."

Kathryn Gray was the editor of the 2006-2007 yearbook. There were quite a few new members on the staff this year, so Kathryn had to work diligently to help Mrs. Williams teach them all the concepts of journalism. "Making sure we got the computers to work and helping new members adjust to the responsibilities was the main part of my job as editor," commented Kathryn.

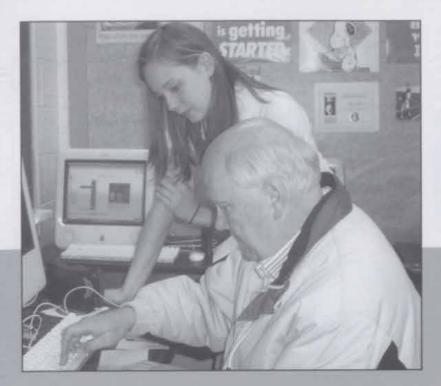

Katie Mingione remarked, "The reason I wanted to be on the yearbook staff is because it looked like something I would like to help make. I am glad I joined, because it is a fun class that teaches me a lot."

Thanks to all the local businesses and school supporters, the yearbook staff was able to add more color and more pages.

Student Council

New President Leads To New Ideas

Luke Wise was elected as the new Student Council president. He stepped up as a junior to lead the council. "The most difficult part of being president was changing people's notions of student government," said Luke Wise.

Luke implemented many changes during the year such as disciplinary forms, standard practices for non-profit organizations and the council reinstated old activities that hadn't been in action for recent years.

"It was difficult at first to adapt to the new style of leadership but now that we have all become accustumed to Luke's style it is easy and a lot of fun. Luke is a great president," said Harlan Kelly. Student Council members continued their popular events like Fast Food Friday, Shawe Games, the talent show, Halloween costume contest and Diversity Week.

"The Halloween costume contest is my favorite Student Council activity. It is fun to see what people will be each year," said Hannah Schafer.

Many students design unique costumes each year which makes the costume contest more fun.

Student Council meetings happened at 7:15 every Thursday morning. The early hour of the meetings separated the dedicated from the undedicated.

"Student Council does a very good job with all their events. And the people from Shawe participate in them well too. If I were from People Magazine I would give them five out of four stars," Quinn Wise said.

And along with new ideas Luke Wise brought in a new motto to student council, "Don't Endure Change - Cause It" Luke Wise said, "that is our new motto. I hope that it will change lives." - Harlan Kelly

French Club

"Nous aimons le club français."

Some people have asked "What is French Club all about?" The purpose of French Club is to raise money for a scholarship awarded to a senior participant of the French club. All year the French Club puts on different activities to help raise the money. "One of my favorite French Club activities would have to be the homecoming dance. I love to go and hang out with my friends and just have a good time." says French Club member Maria Berry.

Ugly Christmas sweater day was another activity that the French Club sponsored. Students were encouraged to wear ugly gaudy Christmas sweaters.

In honor of Mardi Gras the French Club made necklaces and masks. Members decorated the masks with glitter and beads. "Mardi Gras is so much fun. I love dancing around in my mask that I made and showing off my artistic side." said French Club president Kathryn Grav.

Selling candy is also something the French Club does, although the money raised from the candy does not go to the scholarship it goes toward to trip to France for the junior and seniors. "The candy would definately have to be my favorite part of French Club, because there is not enough food in the school lunches. I like coming back over to Shawe from Pope John and being able to buy candy to satisfy my hunger" said Mitch Lauster.

"I love being in French Club" said Peter Bump "It makes me feel like I belong to something important. The activities that we do are also very exciting." -Alyssa Richard

Spanish Club Members invite Pope John for fiestas

When asked what his favorite thing about Spanish Club, Adam Simmons said, "We get t-shirts and I get to go to to SPAIN next year." The Spanish Club goes to Spain or Mexico every two years.

One of the favorite things of being in Spanish Club for all the students was having fiestas. The students were allowed to bring in food and they can eat during the class period or during passing periods when they go to class. They also make a circle with the desks and dance. Cody Harms and Deuce Wall both said, "Fiestas are my favorite part of being in Spanish Club because we get to eat, dance and just take a little time off of class."

All the students that took spanish class were a part of the Spanish Club, making it the largest and most diverse club at school. A fifth year spanish class was offered this year for those that had already taken the fourth level class. The students had the class at 7:00 a.m., fifty minutes before all other students were required to show up for class.

Mrs. Evans was the Spanish teacher for her her third year. When asked about Mrs. Evans, Ben Butler said, "Mrs. Evans is my favorite teacher because she is nice and when she teaches she makes class interesting."

There are also chances for leadership roles with the Spanish Club. Fifth year spanish student John Stack is the President, Cody Harms the Vice President, Jared Martin the High School Representative, Colin McGarry the Junior High Representative. - Mitchell Lauster

JSa Starts Strong JSA makes splash at Spring State

A new student organization was founded when senior Ben Campbell took the initiative to create a Junior Statesmen of America chapter in the school. The chapter wanted to be noticed and make an impression at the first convention they were able to attend, Spring State. The convention was held in Columbus, Ohio. As the only chapter from Indiana at the entire convention, the group acted as though they represented the entire state.

"We didn't bring the most members or have the most experience, but we did have a lot of spirit and a lot of enthusiasm," said Harlan Kelly about the convention. "Our spirit was definitely evident, and the other schools noticed that. It really put us on the map and I think the other schools will remember Shawe." -

Conventions were not the only place where the groups accomplished things, however. Meetings were also a time of achievement for the group.

"During JSA meetings, we have a fun time, but we definitely know how to get the job done," commented member Darren Lainhart. "And when we get the job done, it's 100% done, as in perfect."

"I really enjoyed setting up the chapter and letting kids from Shawe meet other kids from different schools in Ohio," said Ben Campbell. "I look forward to setting up more chapters across the state so more kids can have a good time with this organization."

With a gavel in hand, Jonathan Fisher gives a speech after nominating himself for Lieutenant Governor of the Ohio. River Valley Junior Statesmen Region. "I wasn't expecting to win," said Jonathan, "After I nominated myself from the floor, everyone laughed a little, because nobody ever does that. The other candidates had been campaigning for months. I thought I did a good job considering that I made everything up on the spot. The race really made Shawe stick out." photo by Harlan Kelly.

Fall sports concluded with a bang, leaving hope for huge accomplishments. Junior goalie, Jacob Bump said, "We beat Seymour to tie the shut-out record and we won sectionals, and that was a great goal met for me," about his soccer season. Another fall competitor, Daniel Fisher commented on how hard it was to attain his best time in Cross Country, "I had to push myself when running intervals to build my stamina for the race in practice to run my best time." Even though there were many goals met, they did not come easily. Mitch Lauster, senior boy's basketball player, said, "The hardest part of being a cocaptain for the varsity basketball team was trying to keep Todd Ungru under control. He got two technical fouls, and if he got another, he would have been kicked off the team." "Being competitive in every game, no matter the opponent, has been a tremendous accomplishment for the softball team," said captain, Kathryn Gray. -Alyssa Hall

Year starts with big accomplishments

The varsity soccer team claimed the ORVC Championship along with the title of Sectional Champions within a period of two weeks. "The best moment in sectionals was when I plowed over Troy Lock, just outside the goal box," Tregan Roberts said about the game.

Players learn the fundamentals

With a new coach and a new attitude, the seventh and eighth grade girls began their school year on the volleyball court. Under Miss Jenny Nigg and Mrs. Nancy Kelly's direction, the girls learned the fundamentals of volleyball along with how to work together as a team. Seventh grader, Allie Lustig said, "Playing volleyball really helped me to get acquainted with all the girls on the team, and by the end of the season it was like I had known them forever." Eighth grader, Kimmie Schafer said, "Our game against Southwestern was our most challenging match of the season, because we lost the first, won the second, and then lost the third. We may have not won, but we kept up and played hard throughout the whole match." -Maria Berry

Athletes Glad That It's Over

Daunting conference foes and inexperienced underclassman made a poor combination for this year's girls varsity volleyball team. Rookie coach, Kim Aldridge struggled to find a way to inspire the girls' hearts and the team played twenty-four games of uninspired volleyball. "My favorite part of practice was the end when we could leave," said sophomore Jessica Moore. "The hardest part of the volleyball season was dealing with my coach," commented junior Rachelle Tandy. Junior Maria Berry said, "We did the complete opposite of dominate this season. In fact, we only won three games, but we didn't expect to be very good so it's okay." -Luke Wise

Junior High Stepped-Up

The junior high cross country team started a new generation of runners. The cross country program was resurrected in the past few years and students kept it going strong. With lots of new runners the team was strenghtened. "Junior high cross country really gets me ready for high school cross country. It really shows me what it will be like and what I need to do to prepare," said Sarah Torline. Cross country called for grueling training and very intense performances. "I don't even know why I run Cross Country. I must be crazy. At least that is what I think in the middle of the race. I guess I just do it so I can stay in shape and because my friends do it," Paul Wehner said. -Harlan Kelly.

Eighth graders Dominic "Bean"
Gosman and Ian McGarry do their best in the last legs of the race. Individuals had to finish well to help the team. Ian Mcgarry said, "The toughest part of running is keeping a good mental mind set while enduring the conditions of heat, exhaustion and completion."

Kimmie Schafer and Sarah Torline pace off each other to rack up points for their team. Duos like this weren't uncommon to help pace "Being number one on the team meant that more was expected out of me. I had to set a pace for the whole team. I needed to place well each race so the entire team did well," said Kimmie. photo by Sarah Fisher

Runners Make Every Step Count

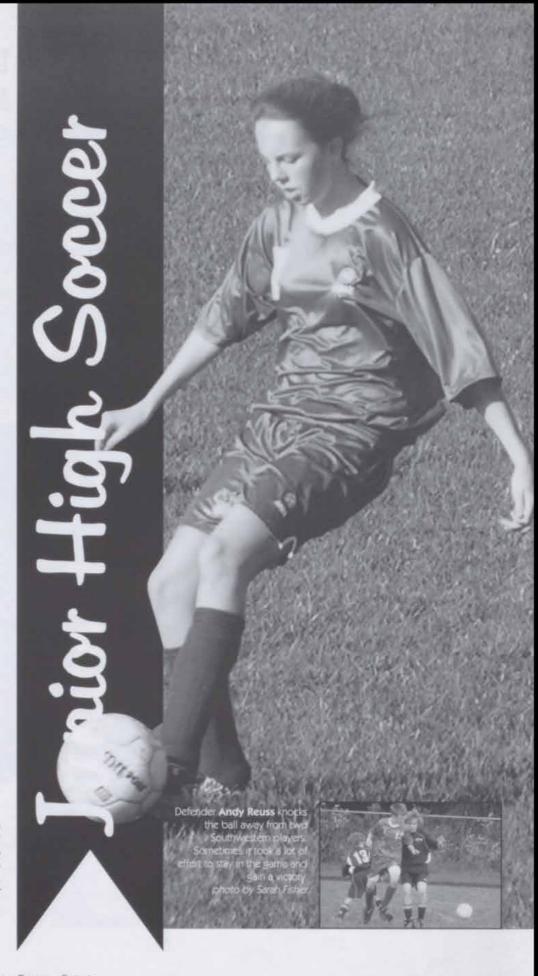

With numbers higher than normal, the varsity cross country team only had a boys team this year. The team consisted of one senior, Kenny Leveille, one junior, Chase Jones, five sophomores, Alex Torline, Evan Torline, Tylor Rampy, Patrick Mullan and Jonathan Fisher, and three freshman, Jordan Bear, Daniel Versweyveld and Harlan Kelly. Most of the runners on the team this year played two sports during the fall; Kenny Leveille, Evan Torline, Alex Torline, Tylor Rampy, Patrick Mullan, Jonathan Fisher and Harlan Kelly participated in varsity soccer as well. Kenny Leveille, the lone senior on the team, has run for four years straight. Kenny said, "I am upset that

Team Remains Undefeated

Soccer season was successful, but sometimes got pretty challenging, too. "The last soccer game was challenging because we couldn't let the other team score the goal. Madison had some tough players on the field," said Tyler Canada. Despite the tough games, the players had a lot of enjoyable moments, "The thing I enjoyed most about the soccer season was when our soccer team went to the championship and won. I feel pretty confident that next year we will go to the championship again and win the first place," said William Craig. Some players accomplished personal achievements during the season. "I scored a goal in a Madison game. It was the goal I was waiting for the entire year and the only one I scored too," said Chloe Storm. -Polina Davydova

Seniors Leave Their Mark

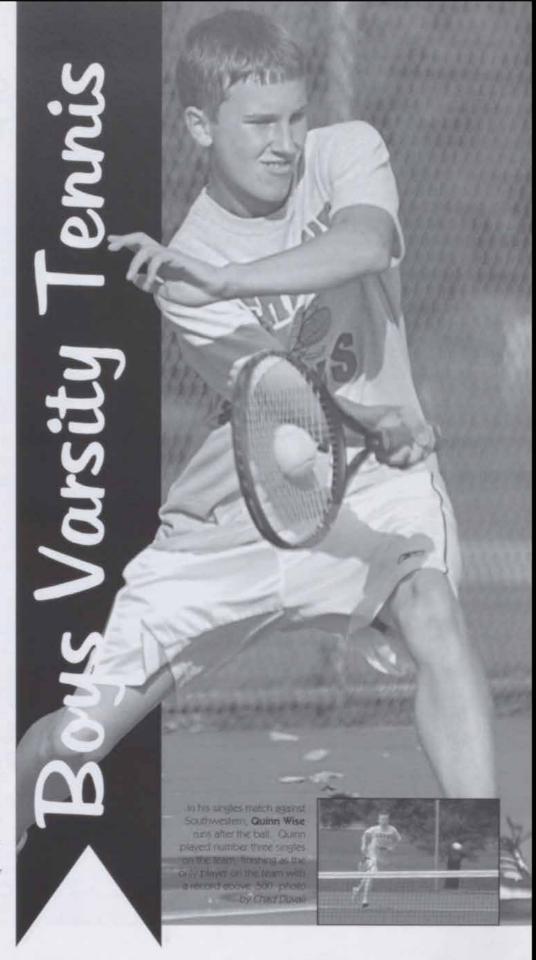

Experienced seniors and a seasoned coaching staff led to a successful season for the Varsity Hilltoppers. Seniors took control and resolved to leave a lasting impression on Shawe soccer for years to come. They saw themselves as mentors for the underclassmen on the team. "I believe the younger players looked up to me because they saw how hard I worked and they respected that," said Alex Murphy. Evan Torline, a sophomore, enjoyed the new, more competitive game. "The seniors were very good and I had to step up my game every time I played with them." The younger girls also had someone to look up to, a senior Alyssa Hall. "The girls looked up to me because they saw past the fact that I was a girl on a boy's team." Young team shows upside

Although the tennis team had many downspots, they still managed to find hope in a season of despair. The tearn was always seen joking around and having a good time with each other despite their struggles on the court "Despite the rough season, we remained dear friends," said freshman Brandon Scroggins. The team was hampered by not having enough players for a number two doubles team. "I think the only reason we lost so much was because we didn't have a number two doubles team," said Quinn Wise. Junior Luke Wise said, " Our record was not indicative of our skill as a team." Cheerleaders Show Spirit

The junior high cheerleaders showed the crowd that they were having a lot of fun while cheering. "The best part of cheerleading was the practices. We could learn new cheers, laugh, and have funl" said Taylor Davis. The junior high cheerleaders made cheerleading look easy, even though for some people it may not be. "At first when I first started to cheer I was the only seventh grader. So I had to be with all the eighth graders. They all knew most of the movements and I had to learn them. Then some seventh graders joined and I got to learn the cheers along with the other seventh graders. I still have trouble learning cheers. So cheerleading was hard at first but after learning the cheers it was easy for me." said Allie Lustig. -Katie Mingione

New Coaches Bring New Style

New coaches, Amy Ball

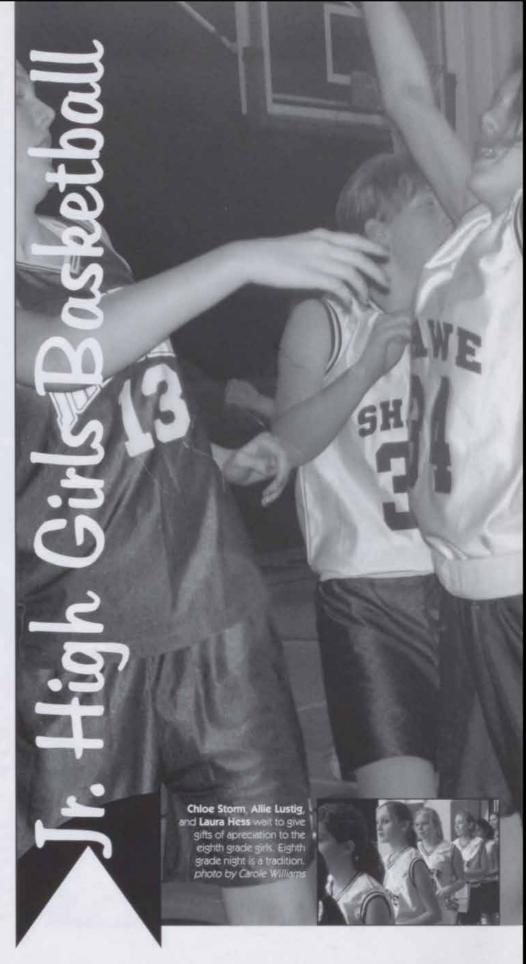

and Jennifer Mingione, brought a whole new outlook to the cheerleading program. "The challenging part was teaching and learning. We all had to teach and learn from each other at the same time," Rachelle Tandy said about her new coaches. There were many new faces, other than the two new coaches, that joined the cheerleading family this year. Abby Lare, a freshman, said, "I really liked flying at the end of the season with Cody, Melanie, and Sydney. That was my favorite part," about her new experience as a cheerleader. "I felt the cheerleaders did an abundantly exceptional job of being enthusiastic and getting the crowd involved," said senior, Tom Seaver, a supporting fan himself. -Alyssa Hall

Girls learn from experience

With a season full of new experiences, the seventh and eighth grade girls handled the pressure of basketball easily. The season was full of many funny moments. "One of the funniest moments for me this season would have to be during the Southwestern game I was trying to save a ball out of bounds and had to "leap frog" over another girl. Everyone laughed," said Catlin Kelley. When Becca Sims was asked if she would continue playing basketball in high school she replied "I have not really made a decision yet. I am planning on it but ..." The eighth grade girls team was cursed with a number shortage so some new players came out for the team. "I was not planning on playing basketball this season but after a few of my friends convinced me, I decided to give it a shot," said Shelby Gray. -Alyssa Richard

The junior high basketball seasons entered in at a level much different then when it ended. "Coach Kring said that the seventh grade had improved tremendously over the coarse of the season," commented

Nathan Scroggins.

The eighth graders entered into a very promising season after only losing 3 of their 15 games last season. "I really thought that we would have a great season. But we finished only a few games above .500," said Matt Armstrong.

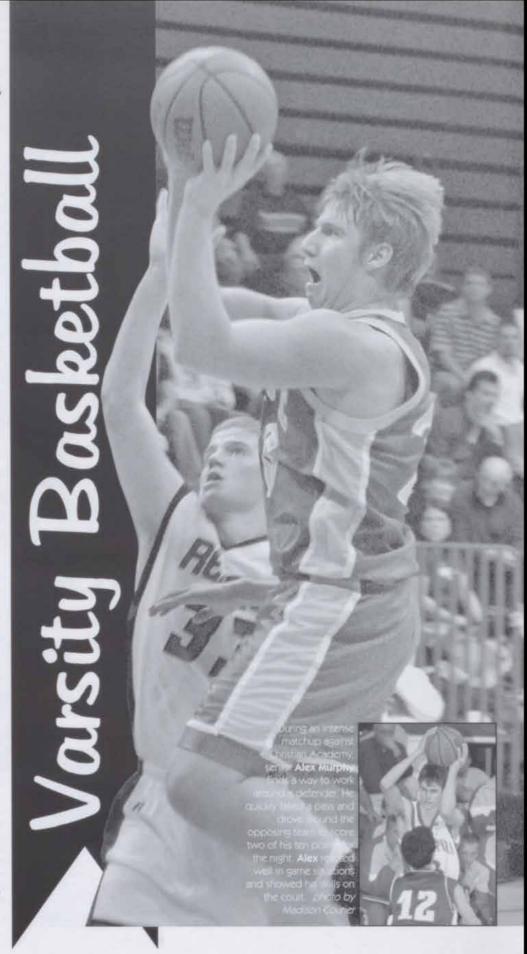

Starter, Jacob Sanders, came into the season with high expectations, but wasn't able to fulfill all of his goals. "Jacob missed 8 of our games this season, which really hurt us in the long run," said Nico Mingione. -Brandon Scroggins

Boys Continue a Legacy

Dominating players led the Varsity Hilltoppers to an unforgettable season. They overcame a slow start halfway through by tying the record for most consecutive wins. "The last second victory over Southwestern was a turning point in the season, and it started our ten game winning streak," said Thomas Barber. While a sectional title slipped away from the team, the tournament left them with many memories. "After we beat Oldenburg in sectionals we found out that we didn't have any showers, so we had to walk through a big crowd of people to a different locker room in only a towel to shower. It was awesome," explained Todd Ungru. "My most memorable moment was hitting a half court shot against Milan. I was ballin," proclaimed Deuce Wall. -Kelsi Ward

New Coaches keep winning record

With first year coach
Pat Berry, the Varsity Girls
Tennis team had a very good season. The team was compiled of three seniors,
Alyssa Richard, Cody
Harms and Paige Jones,
one junior, Maria Berry,
three sophomores, Hailey
Jones, Maise Lauster and Jessica Moore, three freshman, Abby Lare,
Katherine Bear, and Abbey Stillwell.

Maria played one singles, Alyssa played two singles, Cody played three singles, Paige and Hailey played one doubles, Maise and Abby Lare played two doubles and Jessica, Katherine and Abbey

Stillwell played exhibition.

Track Comes

Sometimes junior high track was overlooked but this year the team came out with a phenomenal record. The junior high boys team came in second in the ORVC and either came in first or second for all their regular season meets.

Campbell Higbie said, "My track record this year was very good. I got first place in every event except for two which I place second in both of those. I also never got above 58 seconds in the 400m. My best time was 56.28 which I was very proud of." The season was not only successful with their record but it was successful in making new friends. "My best memory of my track season is that I got to meet new people and make new friends. I had such a good time just hanging out and being with people," said Luis Tovar Overall this years junior high season was a hit! Runners breaking records and racking in the wins. -Alyssa Richard

Seniors step up to lead

From seventh grade to sophomore year, Kenny Leveille was one of the few track members. "It takes guts to be a track runner but even more to run as a lone track member," said Coach Jim Leveille. With the help of Kenny's determination, track started to pick up and more people started to run. It now has blossomed into what it is today. With Coach Jim Leveille as the rock, the track team now is full of successful runners. This includes Thomas Barber who went to regionals and got 5th in the 100 meter dash and 6th in the 200 meter dash. "Thomas not only works hard in practice but he was basically a coach because of the amount of time he spent helping out the young sprinters for the team," said track runner Jonathan Fisher -Harlan Kelly

Golfers Build New Team

The junior high golf team put a lot of time and effort into improving their game. They practiced four days a week and had many matches in between. The junior high golf team had to regroup as many players moved up to the varsity level. The team was faced with many positions to fill in for their top five line up. It was not all work. Players said they had fun while they practiced. "I had a lot of fun during the golf season this year. I was able to play with all of my friends and was also able to compete with other boys my age from other schools. I also learned many things that could help improve my golf game," said Nico Mingione -Katie Mingione

Varsity wins ORVC by 35 strokes

For the fourth straight year, the varsity golf team won the ORVC Golf Championship. The team shot a 309 at the Vineyard Golf Course in Quercus Grove. The team took the top 4 spots in the tournament and was led by medalist Nick Hall with a 74, Deuce Wall with a 75, Brandon Scroggins with a 79, Vinny Bottomley with an 81, and Nathan Hall finishing with an 89. All made the All-Conference

The team then proceeded to sectionals and placed 3rd firing a 304. Then, the road ended suddenly at regionals after placing 8th of the 12 teams.

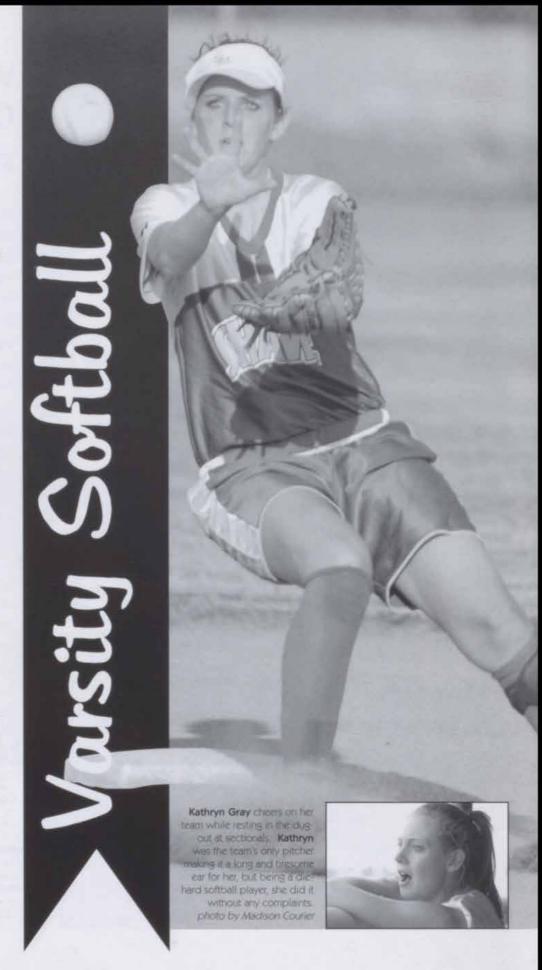

"We finished nine shots back of going to state, and nobody played well. Everyone felt they wasted four or five shots," said Coach Matt Hall. -Brandon Scroggins

Girls' Competition Increases

Having more difficult competition, each player had to be more attentive to the plays when the play was to them. "I only get one chance to prove myself in the outfield, but when someone is in the infield. they get many chances. It's kind of stressful for me," said junior Kristin Waller. However, not only did the season bring more competitive competition, it also brought many improvements, both with individuals and with the team. Rachelle Tandy, the junior catcher said, "This softball season was my best. I became a better catcher due to our great pitcher, Kathryn, I hit the ball well, and became even closer to my teammates. My most improved moment was when I hit two doubles in two days, and another double just a week later." -Alyssa Hall

"Being able to play softball for Shawe has been a great experience. My favorite memory would be either of my perfect games. When everybody plays hard it shows and its a really nice accomplishment for our entire team." "Kathryn Gray."

Toppers find winning ways

After starting out the season with consecutive loses, the Hilltopper baseball team was able to get their bats on the ball with a thrilling victory over Jefferson County rivals the Southwestern Rebels. The Southwestern game was when we really got things going," commented outfielder Ricky McGee. Under first year coach and athletic director Mr. Tom Scroggins direction the Hilltoppers kept their bats hot and were able to turn their season around. When sectionals rolled around the Varsity squad was more than ready to handle the competition. With a first round bye Topper fans watched as the visiting team posted eight runs on South Decatur to advance to the Sectional final. Selling ads proves an easy task for students

Journalism students jump on the advertisement campaign quickly so pages can start sooner, leaving less time in the classroom after summer break commences.

Katie

Mingione outstripped all eleven of her classmates in the run for top seller of ads. "The most challenging part was calling businesses and being turned down," said Katie. Even though selling the necessary ads showed an effortless task, Polina Davydova, an exchange student from Russia, encountered the undertaking of calling businesses, asking if they would like to support the yearbook. Polina said, "Selling ads was a new and challenging experience for me. It required patience, politeness, and other qualities, but I think that it was a useful experience, too. It introduced me to a part of a profession and helped me improve my social skills." For Mitch Lauster, selling ads proved very demanding. "It was very difficult to catch up on selling ads. Everyone in the class had already called most of the businesses so I had to work extra hard to find people who wanted to buy," said Mitch. He joined journalism a quarter late, and still had to sell ten ads. -Alyssa Hall

What does the future hold? Much of the past, for history has a way of repeating itself. We hundle the past and we can do better in the future, for hindsight can give us little foresight, not specifically, but generally.

The best thing about the future is that it comes upon us by degrees, a day at a time. We can manage that much.

Whatever it holds, your future is yours. If it be fair weather, bask in the sun; if it be storms, bend with the wind.

The future belongs to those who can make adjustments. Leroy Brownlow Your past is gone, your present is passing. Your future is arriving. Anonymous

Dear Paige,

Your accomplishments are many and we couldn't be prouder of you. The very best of luck to you in your future endeavors and please remember that we will always be there for you. We love you. Dail and Donna

Parige;

Even though we fight at least once a day, and don't always see eye to eye, at the end of the day you are still my sister and I love you. It is yoing to be so weird not having you around the house or school all the time. I'm yoing to be the only one left. Thanks for always being a great sister.

Love Always, Hailey Ann

ALYSSA and NATHAN:

Your families are very proud!! Clearly, both of you are already on the path to a successful life.

A few thoughts on success...

"...To laugh often and much;

To win the respect of intelligent people, and the affection of children;

To earn the appreciation of honest critics, and endure the betrayal of false friends:

To leave the world a bit better, weather by a healthy child, a garden patch, or a redeemed social condition;

To know that even one life has breathed easier because you lived.

This is to have succeeded." by Ralph Waldo Emerson CONGRATULATIONS!!

Blue Ribbon Year

A blue ribbon year comes to a end. The hard work that was put forth during the year was tied together and a general sigh of relief was let through out the school. Exams ended and seniors were prepared to graduate. There was a mix of feelings as students left school. "School was alright in the end but was I disappointed that the yearbook title I thought of did not get used. It should have been Snakes In A Yearbook," said Journalism student Luke Wise. "There were many great things about this school year. It was awesome that the soccer team conquered the sectional championship because it brought the school spirit way up. And it was also great because I was a Junior and was considered and upperclassman. Less people pushed me around and I got more cool privileges. But the best part was planning and enjoying Prom with my boyfriend Tregan "said Maria Berry. The school year brought change about in all parts of the school. New teachers and new students blended with the Shawe family "Mr. Graham and Mr. Floyd were cool new teachers. They fit right in and I really liked their classes." said Jordan Bear. The belief in a better Shawe brought on good things for everyone. Harlan Kelly

A sectional title, being named a No Child Left Behind Blue Ribbon School and the return of Diversity Week encompassed just a few of the many accomplishments that occurred this year. "I enjoyed all the speakers that we were able to hear," stated sophomore Joey Leveille, "especially Mr. Paul Kelly's speech on the sixties." Other students enjoyed the chance of learning about new cultures. Maise Lauster agreed. "I had a really good year, I got to meet two new exchange students and made many new friends. However, I'm not sad about leaving for the summer." While most students anticipated the upcoming summer break. many also took time to look back and appreciate the past school year. "This year went by really fast! It was a lot of fun, and I am very sad to see it coming to an end," commented Paige Jones. Even new additions to the student body appreciated their time here. "I came in the middle of the year, but the part that I've been here for has been a really great experience. I'm really glad that I got to meet some super nifty people," said freshman Lexi Hurst. All in all the students agreed that it was one great experience, however all good things must end. -Kelsi Ward
